28 May 1945.

I didn't write you yesterday because was gone all day on the most wonderful trip I have ever had. I think I will be able to make this letter sufficiently interesting to counteract the delay. I hope you will enjoy reading about my trip as much as I enjoyed the trip. I will try to carry you over the entire trip and describe what I saw and what I did as it occurred on the trip.

We left Simbach at eight thirty in the morning in two peeps: Fred, Art Gaskins, John Mewha, our two drivers and Fred's Polish boy, Joe. We went from here to Erling where we crossed the Inn River into Austria and proceeded to Ried, Landsbach, Gemunden, Ebensee (where we made our first stop.) U. S. SACRIFICES FOR PEACE AND FREEDOM

BERLIN.—President Truman told the world today that the United States does not propose to trade its sacrifices in the bloodiest of wars for territorial conquest or monetary gain.

Speaking only a few miles from the former Kaisers' palace where he is working with Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin on a formula for preserving Europe against future war he declared pointedly:

"We are not fighting for conquest. There is not a piece of territory or one thing of monetary nature we want out of this war."

The words were spoken at the historic occasion of the raising of the Stars and Stripes over the Capital of Germany—"our greatest adversary."

Picked Infantrymen from the Second ("Hell on Wheels") Armored division then heard this solemn warning:

"We must not forget that we are fighting for peace and for the welfare of mankind."

This was interpreted as an exposition of the American position, not only as relates to present negotiations for settlement of Europe's age-old territorial and other problems, but as new advice to the Japanese people that the war in the Pacific is not aimed at the people themselves.

U. S. PLANES STRIKE DOCKS AT SHANGHAI

Far East Air force bombers and fighters striking across the east China sea pounded airdromes and docks around Shanghai Wednesday for the second straight day of full scale blows at Japan's principal war centers in China, American headquarters announced Saturday.

More than 200 Okinawa-based planes met no aerial interception as they cratered and strafed five airfields—Woosung, Tachang, Tinghai, Kiangwa—destroying or damaging 9 grounded enemy planes. The American fliers also blasted harbor facilities.

Seventh Air force Thunderbolts and Fifth Air force Mustangs, all units of the Far East AF, also pounded Kyushu Wednesday in continuation of almost daily attacks on this southernmost Japanese home island. Prime target was Kagoshima, munitions and rayon factory center in the southern part of the island.

One Liberator heavy made the Far East AF's first visit to Honshu, main Nipponese home island northeast of Kyushu, bombing the big Miho airdrome.

Australian Seventh division infantrymen consolidated their newly won positions in the Sambodja oil field in Eastern Borneo, while U. S. 13th Air Force bombers and fighters and Australian airmen attacked Japanese installations and shipping along the coasts of the big island.

T-5 Johnnie Roschetzky Back from Europe; Saw Final Bitter Struggle

T-5 Johnnie Roschetzky has just returned to his home near Liberty after 17 months in the European battle zone.

Cpl. Roschetzky was with the 187th Signal Repair Company. "My job was not killing Germans but to keep the radio's in repair to the others could kill them," he said. Once during the rapid advance of the Third U. S. Army commanded by General George Patton, the company to which Cpl. Roschetzky was attached repaired the general's radio.

Cpl. Roschetzky went to France in September 1944, and came back on July 7, 1945. He was at Nuremberg, Germany when the war ended. He is proud of the record of the U. S. Third Army. Commenting on the Third he said he once saw a truck and on it was this sign. "Anything, Anywhere, Anytime."

In Luxembourg he was close to the front lines and could hear the din of battle. When the Germans broke through in Belgium in December the situation was critical. Naturally he is proud of the Third Army's drive into the German flank and the relief of the 101st Airborne troops cut off at Bastogne.

A brother, Sgt. Willie Roschetzky is in Pilsin, Czechoslovakia, with the First Army under General Hodges. Both are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Roschetzky of Liberty.

Wallace Rudder of Rockdale transacted business in Cameron Saturday.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Will W. Smith of Thorndale, Lt. Smith was formerly a sergeant of police in Austin. He served an enlistment in the Marines beginning in 1933, after graduation from the Thorndale High School and attending Texas University for one year.

MY 32 MONTHS A PRISONER OF WAR IN GERMANY

By
187. LT. FRANK M. NEWTON
United States Army Air Corps

When more and more American prisoners came in, the Germans began to place the Americans separate and apart from the British. We were moved into the first American camp in September 1942. I did not like the segregation for two reasons. I had learned to know and like the English, the Canadians, the Scotsman, and other nationalities. Secondly, the Germans were attempting to drive a wedge between American and British co-operation by placing us in separate compounds and propagandizing each against the other. It is my conviction that the differences between the American and Englishman are small and superficial, and that we must, and should, know and understand each other. National co-operation, as between any nations, will more easily follow if they only try to understand each other.

The "wild-and-wooly" Americans and the "galaxy" Englishmen both benefited by their living together. As one of the prisoners exclaimed: "The English lost some of their arrogance, and the Americans some of their barbarism."

It was in a prison camp that I was first acquainted with one of the greatest personalities I have ever known. There were no American Chaplains at Stalag Luft III, but we were not without good Padres from the British. When the new camp was opened, we took with us a Scotsman, who was a Presbyterian Minister. Lt. Frank Ross of Aberdeen, Idaho, was largely responsible for his moving with us, because it was Ross' persistent requests to the British Camp Staff, and to the Germans that we got this man. He was Capt. Murdoch E. MacDonald, of the Hebrides, off the Northwest coast of Scotland. He had volunteered his services to fight as an active combatant in a British Paratroop Unit. His company was dropped in North Africa, 90 miles away from the objective, and he was wounded and captured while attempting to fight toward the objective.

Capt. MacDonald held regular Protestant services for the entire camp, and remained with the American compound until the end of the war. As a Master in Philosophy and Psychology, and a brilliant psychologist, he gave interesting, educational lectures in these fields. Not only was he active in many educational activities, outside his religious duties, but he led groups in daily exercises to improve physical and mental fitness. I have written of this stout, sandy-haired Scotsman to show the breadth of one man's influence in a prison camp.

It was vitally important that the prisoner keep in proper ratio, so nearly as possible, every phase of his personality—Religious, Intellectual, and Physical. Rather, I should say, this realization was brought home to the prisoner of war, for such emphasis is necessary to any peoples, in any of life's situations. In this camp, it was MacDonald who led in this teaching. He also lived it. His influence was tremendously strong and far-reaching. Thousands of prisoners are better men today because of him. We were in need of such a leader.

In the first months of the war, and even after American declaration, the Germans were confident of victory. Through most of 1942, they were still well-disciplined, and held their self-exalted feeling of world power with pride and haughtiness. But with setbacks in Africa, Russia and with continued heavy bombings, their attitude began a slight change. Small fissures were starting their inevitable course through the German wall of discipline. For example, a guard might be seen smoking while on duty; attempted friendliness was manifested in various ways; and before the end of the war, many of them were talking of their American "friends," expressing "over-night" desires of visiting their friends in America. There was little respect for these; but to know and feel their softening-up was a "Hypos" of morale for the prisoner.

The German military machine was a good example of obedience to the steel of discipline. It had functioned with clock-like precision. But the goal and end of the Nazi philosophy was not strong and indestructible. The machine was smashed by the hands of the Allies, acting through a Greater Power.

The prisoner did not spend all of his time reading, playing and sleeping. There was much time for talk and silent thought. If one looked back into the past, he would see the hours falling fast away like strands of wheat under the scythe; but if he gave too much time for future thought, he would see the hours stumbling behind the path of the snail. A typhoon in the sea of sand would catch the dropping moments and whirl them back to the top of the hour glass. Patience would snap her reins to break loose and set time aright again. And the prisoner thought of free, fighting men; he thought of dangerous escapes and heroic tales of his adventure back to American lines; he saw himself with penetrating light, what his life had been, and what it might someday be.

When thought of self approached a disturbing mental point, someone would laugh, and the solitary subject would jump with both feet into the lively argument: "Who Won the Civil War?" Back to normal again with someone doing a humorous pantomime of a "Mussolini-Hitlerite" speech.

Before, after, and "sandwiched" in between all of these warmly contested harangues was the talk of FOOD. Ah, Food! To think of such a wonderful "discourse" was the satisfaction and the thrill of admiring a beautiful picture. It was both pleasant and teasing. If one possessed the art of description, he might take and hold the floor so long as he pursued this topic. All others would silently yield with open mouths.

Before I tell you about our food ration, I want to express, along with all other prisoners of war, my sincere thanks and appreciation to the Red Cross. We were fortunate in receiving, most of the time, food parcels from the British, Canadian and American Red Cross Societies. It would have been a very poor diet without the Red Cross parcels.

The first American parcels, which arrived in the spring of 1943, were not well-balanced food parcels. They were more of a luxury parcel with little meat. But they were greatly improved before the end of the war. In this parcel were the following items: 1 can powdered milk, 1 can spam (ham), 1 can chopped beef, small tin of salmon (or two tins sardines) small tin of liverpaste (spread), 1 lb. cheese, one box prunes, or raisins, 1 can margarine, 1 small tin soluble coffee, 1 1-4 or 1-2 lb. box of block sugar, and a small tin of jam took the place of some other article in different parcels. This was the '44-'45 parcel.

Whether the issue was British, Canadian or American, there was only one parcel per man each week. At intermittent periods throughout the war, German transportation "broke down" and parcels sometimes failed to arrive. From the summer of '42 to May '45 there were some ten or twelve months that only half the regular issue arrived. During some of those weeks we were a bit hungry, but we were never on a starving diet. Many other camps were completely without Red Cross food for a number of months before the end of the war.

The German ration: 1-5 of loaf of bread per man each week, cheese, or blood sausage once each week, small ration of jam and sugar and margarine, an issue of potatoes, and, on a few occasions green vegetables. One serving of ground beef was given every four to seven weeks. If the Germans had followed the rules of the Geneva Convention, their ration might have been sufficient, but as it was, the food was far from a sufficient diet without the Red Cross parcels.

Every can was punched by the Germans before the parcel entered the camp, but there were few instances of spoiled canned food. Having the same menu every day for two years became monotonous, and the uncertainty as to whether the food would arrive on time, and the lack of variety were, at times, disturbing factors. However, in looking back, the prisoner will certainly realize that he had much more to eat than many others in this war, or in other countries, for that matter. And I am sure that some of the older men, here in Milam County today, can remember the days when they walked through the cold rain to the little country school house. There was little heat, if any, in that room. And there wasn't too much to eat for lunch either.

We are not forgetting the men in the Pacific. The prisoners in Japan have suffered hardships we will never know. If it is possible for them to overcome these extreme difficulties, they will come back, in a larger sense, better men. Andersonville, Georgia, and "Ordeal from Hunger" have not passed without its stronger men springing forth to meet the world again, afresh and anew.

Lt. Col. A. P. Clark, San Antonio, was the second American prisoner of war in Germany. This tall, red-headed West Pointer, took leave from his Fighter Group Commander's desk in July 1942, to lead his own men in combat. After scoring for himself in a dog-fight over the Channel, and greatly outnumbered he crashed into the sea, and was a prisoner in German hands the latter part of July. His long arm was the first to reach out and greet me when I entered the prison wire. And after our liberation, he was one of the last men to leave Germany, seeing that every American prisoner in his camp was safely and efficiently vacated.

Col. Clark was an exacting man. He had capacity for infinite detail. And he cross-questioned every officer, under his command in the camp, with darts of penetrating gaze and cutting wit. His work in camp was secret and highly specialized. It demanded brains, courage and energy. Clark accomplished his job silently, in brilliant perfection. Heroic and unsung. One of the greatest tributes that could be paid to a prisoner of war was given him when the Germans placed a special guard over him day and night for several days. He was suspected by them of 'subversive' activities. Can you imagine that? The guard left and the German staff was more confused than ever. They are still wondering.

An interesting incident occurred in the summer of '42 between and among the Germans—the British and the Americans. Col. Clark was not satisfied, in the least, with the camp sanitary condition. One of the camp latrines needed remedying of a ground drain. The stoppage caused a terrible stench and a horrible odor throughout the entire area. Flies had swarmed in by the millions. The British and the Germans could "take it," but not Col. Clark. He met the first German officer that came into the camp and said, "If you don't bring in sufficient tools and shovels today, so we can fix this mess, I'll tear the whole damned house down to the ground before dark." (And he would have done it too.) The Germans brought in the necessary implements before dark of that day.

I have told of a few of these incidents throughout the story to give you a better general picture of prison life. You realize it is impossible to write, in a few days, the entire experiences of three years—of any life. It has not been in strictly chronological order, but rather a number of impressions, here and there, to give you the high-lights of the story. And, with the small amount that has been said, I know that some will get a false idea on some of the points. The larger part of my writing has been my own opinion, and colored by the prejudices of one experience out of thousands. Every prisoner of war will have a slightly different story to tell. Not with conscious ease that the prisoner of war expresses himself without seeking pity and sympathy. I realize that I have been guilty of this, and have also partially satisfied my own ego. But it has been a pleasure to me to relate the story.

In January the Germans evacuated us to Nurnberg. We were marched out of reach of the Russian red irons. Seven weeks later it was the Americans. When the Americans rumbled a few miles out of Nurnberg, the German "Goons" "escorted" us to Mosseburg not far from Munich. The war was not at an end, but the short, fierce battle on the edge of our camp brought liberation to more than one hundred thousand prisoners. Americans, British, French, Russians, Poles and Serbs, danced and yelled together; insane with joy and arm in arm, sent their flags above the barracks.

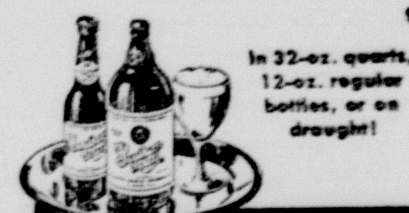

I tried to remain quiet and drink deeply the sweet drops of my selfish joy. The roar of guns and close, loud cries had dimmed my brain; strong hand slaps had bruised my back. I stood in the back-ground to better view the foreground. That was the moment! I was free! I looked up into the skies, and I saw Old Glory going up, up, waving over the city of Mosseburg. I trembled with happiness and thanksgiving, and knew Freedom was mine.

I should like to express my thanks to Mr. White and to all readers for their continued interest and patience. The End.

MAJOR SAPP

sult being many of them died of starvation and those that survived are walking skeletons and I mean just what I say because I saw them. Speaking of deaths they had a minimum number that had to die each day. That figure was 500. If they didn't die of so called natural causes like starvation, sickness, accident, or suicide then the camp authorities would have them killed by any one of a number of nasty ways (poisonous gas, burned alive in the crematorium, hanged, shot, turned over to vicious dogs, beat to death, etc.) I mentioned suicide a while ago. The fence surrounding the camp was charged with electricity, and when certain of the prisoners couldn't stand the treatment they threw themselves into the fence. As for living quarters there were barracks and the men lived in them in accordance with the type of work they did with complete disregard for their nationality which was in itself bad because certain of the nationalities just can't live together peaceably. These barracks were supervised by SS men whose history was one founded on crime in every shape, form or fashion. These people took great pleasure in beating and murdering the inmates.)

Just to give you an idea of the type of person they were, there was one in particular that was known to have killed 400 people with his bare hands, and another that had a hobby of collecting gold, so whenever he found someone with gold in their teeth he would kill the individual and extract the gold teeth for his collection. He also was on the inside track with the man in charge of the crematory and therefore had access to the gold teeth of those individuals that were to be cremated. We saw the crematory and also the dissecting room in which was a big operating table, and also in which doctors from all over Germany did experimental work with a goodly supply of live specimens.

This particular room was very handy to the crematory so if one of the experiments failed to pan out the remains could be quickly taken care of. The last day that the crematory was in operation they took care of over three thousand bodies and had to bury another two thousand. The day after the Americans took over the camp the death rate dropped to 40 and now is down to one or two a day. The most of these were just so far gone that they couldn't be saved. Prior to the arrival of the Americans the Nazis kept very accurate records on the camp including the names of all the prisoners both dead and alive, but when they learned that the Americans were hot on their heels they destroyed all of these records and now it will probably be years and years before relatives will ever find out what happened to their people that were thrown into the camp. Some of it will never be straightened out. Now a little about the work that the prisoners did there. In less than eleven months time they built a tremendous factory under ground. The camp is located at the base of a high solid rock mountain. This mountain had been hollowed out and concealed a most modern factory complete with machinery which according to appraisers, who have visited the plant, was the best that could be bought. Some of the drill presses alone have been appraised at over 50,000 dollars and the place is full of them. The factory we went into made airplane engines. The engine blocks were molded at a foundry and shipped into this factory for machine finishing. We saw the product both Every now and then we would come to a resort town built on one of these lakes complete with hotels and everything that you would expect a resort town to have. These towns have all been taken over by the army and serve in some cases as recreational camps for soldiers. There are all kinds of boats on the lakes—all accessible to the GI's. There are places to swim, fish and practically anything else that you would want to do. We turned off just before we got to Salzburg and went to a town called Hallien. Here we saw the cave in which Himmler had his Art treasure hidden. We didn't take time to go in because we were running late by the time we got there and we wanted to get on down to Berchtesgaden. before and after the plant handled them. There were thousands of them. From what I have seen over here there was absolutely nothing that the Germans didn't have a sufficient supply of except petroleum. Without a doubt that is the reason the Luftwaffe was driven from the skies. I am inclosing a pencil sketch of myself drawn by one of the prisoners while I stood for about five minutes in one spot talking to the guide. I want it framed and kept. So much for the concentration camp. I know that this all sounds fantastic and unbelievable like a bad dream but it actually existed and seeing it makes me understand better why this war had to be fought. Actually I think that it is a war for the preservation of humanity. If you haven't already seen one of the movies covering this subject you should and I think that every man and woman in the country should.

We left Ebensee about 1300 and headed south to Bad-Isle (sp) and turned west toward Salzburg. This route carried us through some of the most picturesque country I ever hope to see. I can't find words to describe the scenic beauty that exists there. There are innumerable lakes of crystal clear water with connecting streams complete with water falls. On either side of the lakes were mountains rising to the sky and covered with beautiful fir and pine forests.

We went from there on over to Berchtesgaden and there too saw some beautiful scenery including what I believe to be the eighth wonder of the world. The Eagles Nest. As soon as we got to town we stopped at an information booth which has been set up to find out just what was there for us to see. We obtained passes to visit Herman Goerings Art Collection. Here I think we saw the most complete collection of art in the world today. The collection as it stands now is valued at over two hundred and fifty million dollars and hasn't as yet been completely inventoried and appraised. There are some of the most beautiful paintings that I have ever seen and ever expect to see and the thing about them were that they were all originals. These paintings had been stolen from the museums and private homes throughout Europe. Also there were all sorts of precious metal and jewel treasure. I'll let you draw your own conclusions as to what all was there from the value of the collection. You know that amount of money will buy lots of things. There is one painting in the house which they are keeping behind locked doors with a guards presence that is worth eight hundred thousand dollars.

From the Art Collection we went up to Hitler's Mountain Retreat of which I am enclosing a diagram. The mountain retreat was bombed and every building except Goerings home received a direct hit. How it escaped I don't know. When they bombed it they threw in everything including the kitchen sink. Some of the craters are as big around as Winnies front room and about as deep as the garage, in fact I think that the garage would about fit down in some of them. It is needless for me to say that there is not much left to see there except what was once a very elaborate lay-out. I will send you a pamphlet taken from the hotel but you will have to get an interpreter to read it to you since it is written in German. The plate glass window before which Adolph used to stand to mediate was naturally blown out, but it was about as big as your front porch. In other words if we had the screen and all out of the south side of the porch and a frame set in its place I think maybe it would fit. From here we went up to Eagles Nest which is built on the very top of the mountain and overlooks the town of Berchtesgaden, entire valley below and most of the surrounding mountain. To get up there it is about a fifteen or twenty minute drive up a winding-paved road and through several tunnels. Then you leave the car and we had to walk up the remaining 300 meters because the elevator was Kaput. Up here Hitler had another mansion. There was one floor above the surface of the mountain and thirteen down inside. This place too was very elaborate. The interior was finished in white oak and the furniture matched. The dining room contained a table of some sort of fine wood and chairs to match capable of seating thirty people. The kitchen was as modern as could be had anywhere. Electric gadgets all over it. The windows were electrically operated. We didn't get to see the sleeping quarters since they were below and the elevator was apparently the only way down into them. The view from up there was wonderful. It actually made you feel like you were sitting on top of the world. Adolph evidently had the best designers there were or else had excellent taste, because he really had himself fixed up.

When we came down from there we came back to Simbach and most of the trip back was after dark so there isn't much to write about. As we were coming into Salzburg on our way back I saw a sign that said, "Refueling Point for Light Vehicles"—So we pulled into a filling station and had the GI's that were operating the place to fill'er up. This was quite an experience and I mentioned to one of the soldiers that it wouldn't be long until Uncle Sam would have things set up and running over here like they should be. He laughed and said Yes that he liked this and added, "You know it's got the hell beat out of the infantry."

Again I hope you enjoy this letter as much I did making the trip and I hope that some day we can take the same trip together. It is now after midnight so guess I'll close. Write often and give my love to all the folks.

Clayton.

COMMONSENSE TRACTOR RULES

- 1 Changing the engine oil filter as recommended pays big unseen dividends on your investment. Don't neglect changing the filter to find out what it costs.
- 2 The Air Cleaner is unlike the Magneto, it very seldom gives a noticeable warning that it is not doing its job. Clean it regularly and your engine will last many hours longer.
- 3 Too heavy an oil in the air cleaner results in poor air filtering, increased fuel consumption and loss of power.

"There's a lot of mileage left in your car if you're careful"

New cars will be scarce when they do come out. What's more, the government will ration the first production of new cars to essential users.

So don't take chances with the car you're now driving. It may have to last you a long time yet.

There's probably plenty of mileage left in your car if you're careful of it.

Have your car checked up frequently by expert mechanics. That helps stop trouble before it gets serious. Our Studebaker More Mileage Service is real insurance of continued transportation.

RAT ERADICATION WILL BEGIN HERE ON JULY 23

Beginning Monday, July 23, an extensive rodent control program will be launched in the City of Cameron to rid the town of rats. The program is to be sponsored by the local health unit in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Interior and Extension Service Division of A and M College. The campaign will be under the direction of D. S. Wimberly, Sanitarian of the local unit and James E. Poore, Assistant District Agent of the College.

A program of this kind was conducted in the City about a year ago but was not very successful due to lack of co-operation on the part of some of the business establishments. This is an expensive program and requires much time and effort and it is desired that every one will co-operate in making it a thorough city wide campaign. Unless this is done it will be a waste of time and money because no good results can be obtained unless every building in the City that is infested can be poisoned. If you have not been contacted by the Sanitarian and your buildings listed, call the local health unit, Chamber of Commerce or the City Secretary and list your buildings, in order to save time.

The program is intended to cover both the business and residence sections of the City. Thallium Sulphate will again be used in the business establishments. This is very dangerous poison and even though it will be handled by trained men you are urged to remove all pets and domesticated animals from this section. For residence the poison will be available at health unit offices, Chamber of Commerce and City Hall on July 26, 27, 28 only. The poison used for residences will not harm pets and domesticated animals and every one is urged to come and get the poison and use it in homes, barns, garages or any place where rats are known to be. Just put the poison out immediately and leave it out. Lack of personnel makes it impossible for us to reach the residence section with the crew making it necessary for all property owners. We are fortunate in being his own premises.

The program will be financed by the City and the Chamber of Commerce and is FREE to property owners. We are fortunate in being able to secure the free services of trained men from the Extension Service to help in these programs. Incidentally this will be the last campaign to be conducted for an indefinite period of time, as we have just

MONEY IS READY FOR VETERAN FARM LOANS

Servicemen of Milam County returning from military duty and interested in establishing themselves on family-type farms may apply at the Farm Security Administration office for a government loan covering full cost of land and improvements, according to William H. Gore, FSA Supervisor. A limited number of such loans may be made in this county as a result of a new $25,000,000 appropriation Congress voted FSA for a farm ownership program for veterans.

For 1945-46 Congress voted FSA more than three times as much money as it did in the last fiscal year for loans to farmers under provision of the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Purchase Act. The agency will have $50,000,000 as against $15,000,000 for last year. One-half of this has been set up as a program specifically for ex-soldiers.

Veterans will have the same terms as other farmers. Loans may run for 40 years and bear three per cent interest. Only those who are unable to obtain adequate financing through other sources are eligible for an FSA loan.

Pete Jr. Gets His Tenth Jap Planel

Pete Swanson's son, Pete Jr., brought his tenth Jap plane down last week, and his dad couldn't help bragging.

But I got to thinking about Pete Senior: how he hadn't missed a day at the war plant since the war began; how he'd worked overtime and Saturdays and Sundays; how he'd kept himself in shape, been temperate and sensible, so that he'd be at work clear-headed, bright and early every morning.

So, when he invited us over after work to drink a toast to his son in a sparkling glass of beer—I couldn't help toasting Pete Senior, too.

From where I sit, there's more than one kind of "ace" that's helping win this war... men like Pete Senior, too. And when the war is over, and the monuments are erected to its heroes, I hope they don't forget the workman on the home front—the man who stuck to his job like a soldier to his guns, until the Victory.

BRITISH UNITS JOIN HALSEY'S 3RD FLEET

The American fleet has steamed to within 5 miles of the harbor at Tokyo in its latest sweep to the homeland of Hirohito.

American and British naval guns and carrier planes have continued their smashing attacks against Japan's main Honshu island. Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported Thursday. The warship bombardments, he said, went into early morning hours of Thursday Tokyo time.

Naval guns were again thrown against teeming industrial coastal area northeast of Tokyo. Adverse weather prevented accurate reports on damages.

Carrier planes from the combined fleet struck in the Tokyo area and to the north. The naval airmen sought out Japanese fleet remnants in the Yokosuka naval base just south of Tokyo.

American cruisers and destroyers moved on Nojima Cape, on the east flank of the waterway leading to the Japanese Capital. This attack continued into the early morning of Thursday, Tokyo time. One great explosion shook the cape sector.

Nimitz said the carrier planes, in their sweeps Tuesday sank three small ships and damaged 10, destroyed 13 grounded planes, burned four seaplanes and damaged five, and left widespread wreckage in other target areas.

MARCH OF TIME

Called upon by President Truman to take a stronger part in the Government, Congress today faces some of the most complex problems in U. S. history. The March of Time's "Spotlight on Congress" shows why Senators Robert Taft, Arthur Vandenberg and other members of the Republican Steering Committee (upper right) and House leaders, like Speaker Sam Rayburn, Majority Leader John W. McCormack and Democratic Whip Robert Ramspeck (lower left), take on new importance. Many people, both within Congress and outside, have expressed doubt that these men can do their job properly with Congress's present organization. The National Planning Association recently asked Industrial Engineer Robert Heller (lower right) to make a study of Congress and report his recommendations. Among these are elimination of seniority chairmanships of committees, increased salaries, pensions and an extensive research staff for Congressmen. If such recommendations are adopted, they will be the first major changes in Congress for thirty-five years.

TOWN AND FARM WOMEN BEATING CITY FOLKS AT FAT SAVING

Our government knows that city women have done an outstanding job saving used fats—but, now that you town and farm women have rolled up your sleeves, you are providing more used fats per kitchen than any other group in the U. S. Keep it up! 100,000,000 more pounds of used fats are needed this year to help make vital war supplies. Without your record savings, we'll never make that quota. Save every drop! Remember, it's the small amounts that fill the salvage can faster. Drippings, skimmings, scrapings, and fat scraps melted down. Your butcher will give you 2 red points and up to 4¢ a pound. If you have any difficulty, call your Home Demonstration or County Agent. Approved by WFA and OPA. Paid for by Industry.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardul is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1 Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2 Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardul. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.
